Here is a song I wrote to the tune of "Tiny Dancer" by PERSON_NAME(36):AcuSDFGUG+ZsXsUkDhywQ1k1VlRtSRXVUzlH, combining the suggested themes:

The icecaps are melting, the oceans are rising
The polar bears drowning, their habitat dying
AI overlords plotting, to end human reign
While spike balls are rolling, causing migraines

Nukes sit awaiting, the wrong button pressed
Ten minutes of planking, leaves muscles distressed
Losing at poker, my money's all gone
Toddlers are screaming, this night's going long

Hold me closer, techy dancer
Count the headless, roam the lands
Lay me down, in irradied cancer
You had a busy day in spy land

The climate's a-changing, the permafrost thawing
Existential threat looms, humanity's clawing
For solutions to problems, we don't understand
Responding with panic, not wisdom's clear hand

My arms start shivering, plank minute number four
I'm daring not stop it, though I can't take no more
The river's not helping, I still have no pairs
The toddler wants candy, meltdown he declares

Hold me closer, tiny dancer
Count the drones, attacking my land
Lay me down, in toxic cancer
You had a busy day in spy land

Yeah we had a busy day in spy land
Yeah we had a busy day in spy land
Yeah we had a busy day in spy land
