Completion:

Here is an original song about the death of PERSON_NAME(40):ARQUeEX/KaT+qqn9j1AqTxM/4BkXwMcfkueEHw==:

The Day the Music Died

February made me shiver, the news cut like a knife
That snowy day in fifty-nine, the day we lost his life
PERSON_NAME(40):ARQUeEX/KaT+qqn9j1AqTxM/4BkXwMcfkueEHw== boarded a plane, he was flying to his show
But the weather turned on him, brought that aircraft down below

He was just 22 years old, his music carved the path
For the British bands to come, that would later cause a craze
But his story met an early end, that February day
When the lights went out on PERSON_NAME(32):AZv+BUOzz/9QVVOiAIJAEeVoKVPGhJzZ's son, the day the music died

We'll always remember PERSON_NAME(32):Ab0G9dj7Wa4Qq57KTRvgFhXJvx/w1A==, and his thick-rimmed glasses and grin
Cut down before his prime, what more could he have done?
The day the music died, the day the music died
Still can't believe he's gone, the day the music died

So we'll play his songs like PERSON_NAME(32):AdsEvl47N+XVj1k3vpUguFv/qklNNw==
PERSON_NAME(28):Ad1ShQvsbHHVhd6PkXkoLvhGOfY=, PERSON_NAME(28):AQ6IBxEWZwpyRW3i3xY4sQvwGpS/ On and Everyday
Keep his memory alive, though he's long passed away
Taken way too soon from us, but left his mark behind
February made me shiver, the day the music died
