Review	Preliminary (sample): matches have passed the automatic checks and the software review; a person has not checked this sample’s matches. In a paid report, a person at PayAuthors checks the registration matches that affect the counts, and the reviewed version is added at the same link beside the preliminary one.
Edition	Registration Details — with the Copyright Office status record, recorded documents and the Office’s record PDF for each matched registration

Where your books were found

In short: 6 books under this name are in these datasets, plus 4 editions found only in another language, most likely translations of these books, marked “likely translation” and not counted as books. Together they appear as 15 title lines and 51 catalog records (copies, formats and editions). 5 of the books match a U.S. copyright registration (5 registrations in all), and 4 were registered before at least one documented download, the registration-date screen under 17 U.S.C. § 412. The Evidence section that follows gives every catalog record behind each title.

- 1 catalog copy is a translation (another language, with a foreign title or ISBN), matched to the registration of the original: listed, not counted as the book’s presence in any dataset, because a translation is not the registered text; ask counsel whether it supports a claim: We were never here, Z-Library (after PiLiMi) record, Italian, 2024 (TX0009000657)
- 4 catalog copies the library tags in another language carry the English title and an English ISBN (or none): counted as the registered book with a wrong language tag (confirm): The other side of the road, Z-Library (after PiLiMi) record, Portuguese, 2024 (TX0009377142); The spare room, Z-Library (after PiLiMi) record, Portuguese, 2023 (TX0009301448); The herd, Z-Library (after PiLiMi) record, Portuguese, 2020 (TX0008912519); The lost night, Z-Library (after PiLiMi) record, Portuguese, 2019 (TX0008858704)

What this report shows, and what it does not

This report compares the name searched with the dated Library Genesis catalog snapshots listed under Data provenance, the PiLiMi index of Z-Library, later Z-Library catalog records (Anna's Archive's index of records added August 2022 to August 2023, and the MajinBook extract of the January 2025 catalog), the Internet Archive's lending-library catalog, the list of Books3 file names published by Peter Schoppert, and U.S. Copyright Office registration data as published in January 2026, each identified by version and checksum in this report. A match means that a corresponding catalog record or file name appears in that source. It does not establish that any person or company downloaded, copied or used the listed file or dataset, or that any model was trained on a work. The Internet Archive is a nonprofit library, not a pirate site; a lending-library line means the Archive lists a scanned copy of the book for borrowing. A book counts as in Books3 only when a file in the Books3 file list carries it; an ISBN printed somewhere in the Books3 texts is not enough, because a book's text prints other books' ISBNs, and the report says when a list that goes by those ISBNs would be wrong. Copyright Office results are candidate matches to public registration records; each line states how the match was made and links to the Office's record for verification. A match is not a legal determination of authorship, ownership or infringement, and the absence of a match does not show that a work is unregistered or absent from another dataset. LibGen catalog entries for the same edition are combined into one line with a count; no entry is dropped. Matching is automated and not perfect: expect some missed records and some matches that are not the author's, and check any line you rely on. Source-file checksums identify the exact files analyzed; they do not, by themselves, establish a file's origin, completeness or authenticity. This report is litigation support, not legal advice.

Plain-English explanation of what a match does and does not show: payauthors.com/what-a-match-shows. Sources, checksums and matching methods: payauthors.com/methodology.

Before you rely on this report

1. Untick any title that is not yours on the report page; the PDF, CSV and counts follow your choice.
2. Open each registration link and compare the title, author or claimant and edition with the Copyright Office record. "Record matched: other edition" means another edition of the same work. A translation is listed with the registration of the original but not counted; a copy tagged in another language that carries the English title and ISBN is counted as the book.
3. Treat lines listed under the surname only (or the surname and initials), lines found only by an ISBN that Open Library lists under the name searched, and matches marked "check this match", as unconfirmed until you confirm them.
4. Read "dates overlap or download date unknown" items as questions to investigate; they are never counted.
5. The copyright claimant listed on a U.S. Copyright Office registration may not be the person who owns the work now. To know who owns it, review any written agreements with co-authors (if any) or a publisher, and consult a lawyer, who can also advise on transfers, timeliness and any settlement release.

Evidence

The detail behind the summary: record counts, the timeline of documented downloads against our dated catalog snapshots, and every catalog record under this name with the snapshots that list it and any candidate registration.

Counts

51 catalog records	15 title lines	0 LibGen non-fiction	7 LibGen fiction	43 Z-Library (PiLiMi and later)
1 Books3 files	0 Internet Archive lending	5 registrations matched	21 records registered before a documented download	6 books (works)

This report lists every record in the datasets below whose author field matched "Andrea Bartz": each edition the Library Genesis non-fiction and fiction catalogs listed under that name in any of the dated catalog snapshots in this dataset (with year, language, publisher, ISBN, edition statement, the snapshots in which it appears and the number of catalog entries behind it), each record under the name in the Pirate Library Mirror (PiLiMi) index of Z-Library with the 2022 release that carried it, each later Z-Library record (added August 2022 to August 2023 per Anna's Archive's index, or listed in the January 2025 catalog), each book in the Internet Archive's lending library, and each file in the published Books3 file list whose file name carries the name. Where a record could be matched to a U.S. Copyright Office registration (non-dramatic literary works, TX, registrations through December 2025 as published in January 2026) the candidate registration number, date, claimants and the method of the match are given. Editions whose ISBN is on the Books3 ISBN list are checked against the Books3 file list, and the report says whether a Books3 file carries the title.

Records are grouped by title (accents, punctuation and a leading article removed). Each line comes from one source. LibGen catalog entries describing the same edition (same author field, title, ISBN, year, publisher and edition statement) are combined into one line, and the number combined is shown as “catalog entries”; no entry has been dropped. The same title can rightly appear several times when the catalog held several editions. A few LibGen catalog entries carry no title at all (only an author, publisher or ISBN); these are listed under "(no title in the catalog entry)". Please read the Method and limits section before relying on any single line.

Your editions on the timeline

Each documented event on its own row, with how precisely its date is known; our dated catalog snapshots along the bottom, with the number of editions under this name each one listed. A dashed line connects an event to the latest snapshot of that source before it. A count before an event shows the work was listed in the source by then; it does not show that those files were in what was taken. Every event and its source: payauthors.com/timeline. The chart continues on the next page.

● event in a court record ◆ company's own paper ○ allegation ■ snapshot with candidate matches

Dashed line: comparison with a snapshot, not proof of inclusion in the download. Bold snapshot label: the June 5, 2021 catalog, contemporaneous with Anthropic's LibGen download. "LibGen nf": the April 2019 LibGen dump holds the non-fiction catalog only; a fiction title cannot appear in it. LibGen 2/2020 combines the fiction dump of Feb. 8 and the non-fiction dump of Feb. 13, 2020. Z-Library 8/2023: records added after PiLiMi, Aug. 2022 to Aug. 2023 (Anna's Archive index); Z-Library 1/2025: the January 2025 catalog (MajinBook extract, EPUB-type records only).

• OpenAI, Books3 via The Pile (alleged) (Feb. 1, 2021) — Allegation (a party's filing): In re OpenAI Copyright Litigation (S.D.N.Y. 1:25-md-03143), class plaintiffs' Rule 56.1 statement ¶¶404, 411–414 (Dkt. 1987, Sept. 17, 2026)

• OpenAI, LibGen sets sent to Microsoft (alleged) (early 2021) — Allegation (a party's filing): In re OpenAI Copyright Litigation (S.D.N.Y. 1:25-md-03143), class plaintiffs' summary judgment memorandum at 9 (Dkt. 1982, Sept. 17, 2026), citing Rule 56.1 statement ¶¶573–577: "LibGen1" and "LibGen2" sent to Microsoft in early 2021 under the GPT-3 access deal; Microsoft downloaded and later deleted them

• Anthropic, Books3 (Feb. 25, 2021) — Court order: Bartz v. Anthropic, order of June 23, 2025 ("early 2021"); the day is Anthropic's own statement: its interrogatory answer says Ben Mann downloaded Books3 "on or around February 25, 2021" (Dkt. 554-6 at 4, served Apr. 22, 2025, filed Jan. 21, 2026) Anthropic later said it "stopped training Claude on Books3" before the Claude 3 models of March 2024, the first without it (motion for summary judgment of March 2025, Dkt. 553 at 8)

• Anthropic, LibGen, 5M+ books (June 2021–June 2021) — Court order: Bartz v. Anthropic, order of June 23, 2025 (June 2021); the days are Anthropic's own statement: its interrogatory answer says the LibGen dataset was torrented "between June 8, 2021 and June 19, 2021" (Dkt. 554-6 at 4, served Apr. 22, 2025, filed Jan. 21, 2026)

• Anthropic, PiLiMi, 2M+ books (July 2022–August 2022) — Court order: Bartz v. Anthropic, order of June 23, 2025 (July 2022); the days are Anthropic's own statement: its interrogatory answer says the PiLiMi dataset was torrented by two employees "between July 8, 2022 and August 10, 2022" (Dkt. 554-6 at 4, served Apr. 22, 2025, filed Jan. 21, 2026); Aug. 10, 2022 is also the date agreed for the settlement

• Meta, LibGen uploading (alleged) (October 2022–December 2022) — Allegation (a party's filing): Sullivan v. Meta (N.D. Cal. 3:26-cv-06793), complaint ¶51 (July 2, 2026): during Meta's 2022 LibGen torrenting, about 4,500 other users in the swarm obtained files from Meta. The complaint gives the year only; the period shown starts with the first LibGen download, which ¶49 dates to about October 2022. Meta's answer in Sullivan (Dkt. 85, Sept. 29, 2026) admits that it downloaded LibGen data in or about October 2022 (¶49) and that some data was uploaded while it torrented (¶¶51–52); it gives no date for the uploading (company's own statement)

• Meta, first shadow-library use (October 2022) — Court order: Kadrey v. Meta, order of June 25, 2025

• NVIDIA, Books3 via The Pile (2023) — Allegation (a party's filing): Nazemian v. NVIDIA, complaint; motion to dismiss denied May 2026

• Meta, LLaMA paper: Books3 (Feb. 27, 2023) — Company's own paper or filing: Touvron et al., LLaMA (Feb. 27, 2023)

• Meta, LibGen torrenting, one employee (alleged) (March 2023–April 2023) — Allegation (a party's filing): Kadrey v. Meta (N.D. Cal.), joint case management statement, Dkt. 841 (Sept. 23, 2026): plaintiffs report torrenting by a former employee, Guillaume Lample; Meta did not dispute it there. Meta's answer in Sullivan v. Meta (Dkt. 85 ¶50, Sept. 29, 2026) admits downloading LibGen in 2023 by direct download and torrenting and using that data to train Llama models; it gives no months (company's own statement)

• Cerebras, Cerebras-GPT on The Pile (Books3 alleged) (March 28, 2023) — Allegation (a party's filing): James v. Cerebras Systems (N.D. Cal. 4:25-cv-09361), complaint ¶¶26–28 (Oct. 30, 2025); Cerebras's answer (Dkt. 76, July 9, 2026) ¶28 admits portions of The Pile, not Books3; Cerebras blog, Mar. 28, 2023

• Bloomberg, BloombergGPT paper: Books3 (March 30, 2023) — Company's own paper or filing: Wu et al., BloombergGPT (Mar. 30, 2023)

• Together AI, RedPajama with part of Books3 (own answer) (April 17, 2023) — Company's own paper or filing: James v. Together Computer (N.D. Cal. 3:25-cv-09578), Together AI's answer to the first amended complaint (Dkt. 54, June 3, 2026) ¶¶22–23, 29, 31–33

• Meta, LibGen, direct and torrent (own answer) (2023) — Company's own paper or filing: Meta's answer in Sullivan v. Meta (N.D. Cal. 3:26-cv-06793), Dkt. 85 ¶50 (Sept. 29, 2026): LibGen downloaded in 2023 by direct download and torrenting; no months given. Meta's interrogatory answers (Chicken Soup for the Soul v. Meta, Dkt. 140-6 at 14–15, served Sept. 4, 2026) say it began downloading LibGen directly, without torrents, in or about spring 2023

• NVIDIA, Anna's Archive access (alleged) (August 2023) — Allegation (a party's filing): Nazemian v. NVIDIA (N.D. Cal. 4:24-cv-01454), first consolidated amended complaint ¶¶53–57 (ECF 235, Jan. 16, 2026); NVIDIA's Answer admits downloading data from annas-archive.org/datasets, without a date (ECF 321 ¶77, June 9, 2026)

• OpenAI, The Pile again (alleged) (September 2023) — Allegation (a party's filing): In re OpenAI Copyright Litigation (S.D.N.Y. 1:25-md-03143), class plaintiffs' Rule 56.1 statement ¶417 (Dkt. 1987, Sept. 17, 2026): EleutherAI had removed Books3 from its own copy in Aug. 2023; plaintiffs say other versions still had it; the copy has not been produced

• Meta, Anna's Archive (early 2024) — Court order: Kadrey v. Meta, order of June 25, 2025 (Dkt. 598 at 11–13); Meta's Answer in Elsevier v. Meta admits obtaining Anna's Archive data in 2024 (Dkt. 78 ¶97)

• DeepSeek, DeepSeek-VL paper: Anna's Archive (March 8, 2024) — Company's own paper or filing: Lu et al., DeepSeek-VL (arXiv 2403.05525, Mar. 8, 2024), §2.1: 860K English and 180K Chinese e-books from Anna's Archive

• Meta, torrented and uploaded (alleged) (April 2024–July 2024) — Allegation (a party's filing): Elsevier v. Meta and Zuckerberg (S.D.N.Y. 1:26-cv-03689; transferred to N.D. Cal. Sept. 25, 2026), complaint ¶99. Hobbs v. Meta (S.D.N.Y. 1:26-cv-04314), complaint ¶77, gives April and September 2025 for 134 TB and 161 TB from Anna's Archive; in Kadrey v. Registration-date screen (§ 412) by possible defendant

Books in this report (all copies, editions and title lines of each) that were listed in a dataset by the time a company downloaded it, and carry a matched registration dated before the download, or registered within three months of publication when publication came first (17 U.S.C. § 412). For the download date we use the later of the documented start of the download period and the library's own record of when that copy was added (catalog metadata, not independent proof; for Books3, its October 2020 release); for an event known only by an outer bound (a paper, model release or complaint date), only the record date is available. A LibGen copy counts as in the dataset at a download only when a dated LibGen catalog snapshot taken on or before that download lists it; LibGen's own "added" date is shown but is not enough on its own. A registration before that date passes, as does one made within three months of a publication that came first. Where the dates overlap or no download date is known, the comparison is listed separately and not counted. "Known from" says how the event is known. A date screen for investigation, not a finding that anyone copied a work or that statutory damages are available.

COMPANY	DATASET · WHEN	KNOWN FROM	BOOKS	REGISTERED BEFORE THE DOWNLOAD (§ 412)
Anthropic (released in the Bartz settlement)	Books3 · early 2021 per the court record; on or around Feb. 25, 2021 per Anthropic's own answer (cutoff Feb. 24, 2021)	court order	1	The Lost Night
Anthropic (released in the Bartz settlement)	LibGen · June 2021 per the court record; June 8–19, 2021 per Anthropic's own answer (cutoff June 7, 2021)	court order	2	The Herd, The Lost Night

COMPANY	DATASET · WHEN	KNOWN FROM	BOOKS	REGISTERED BEFORE THE DOWNLOAD (§ 412)
Anthropic (released in the Bartz settlement)	PiLiMi · July 2022 per the court record; July 8 – Aug. 10, 2022 per Anthropic's own answer (cutoff July 7, 2022); part of PiLiMi: Anthropic took the PiLiMi copies of books it did not already have from LibGen, at least two million (Bartz Dkt. 244 at 2:25-3:5), so a book it already had from LibGen may not have been taken again from PiLiMi	court order	2	The Herd, The Lost Night
Meta	LibGen · October 2022; part of LibGen: Meta's verified interrogatory answers describe a partial torrent download of LibGen's non-fiction collection in October 2022 and a direct download in spring 2023, so whether a given copy was among the files taken is not shown	court order	3	The Herd, The Lost Night, We Were Never Here
Meta	Books3 · by Feb. 27, 2023 (LLaMA paper; outer bound)	company's own paper or filing	1	The Lost Night
Meta	Anna's Archive (LibGen, Z-Library and others) · early 2024; part of Anna's Archive: which files Meta torrented is disputed; the court ordered Meta to produce its torrent servers' command histories (Kadrey Dkt. 831, Sept. 11, 2026)	court order	4	The Herd, The Lost Night, The Spare Room, We Were Never Here
Bloomberg	Books3 · by Mar. 30, 2023 (BloombergGPT paper; outer bound)	company's own paper or filing	1	The Lost Night
Together AI	Books3 (part, in the RedPajama dataset) · by Apr. 17, 2023 (RedPajama release; outer bound); part of Books3: Together AI's answer says RedPajama's books section contained a subset of Books3, so whether a given copy was among them is not shown	company's own paper or filing	1	The Lost Night
DeepSeek	Anna's Archive (e-books) · by Mar. 8, 2024 (DeepSeek-VL paper; outer bound); not before DeepSeek's lab was set up, April 2023; part of the archive: DeepSeek's paper describes 860,000 English and 180,000 Chinese e-books from Anna's Archive, so whether a given copy was among them is not shown	company's own paper or filing	3	The Herd, The Lost Night, We Were Never Here

OpenAI (LibGen): Authors Guild v. OpenAI (S.D.N.Y.), discovery order Nov. 24, 2025 (Dkt. 782): undisputed that an employee downloaded LibGen books in 2018. Cutoff: class plaintiffs place the download in October and November 2018 (In re OpenAI, summary judgment memorandum at 5, Dkt. 1982, Sept. 17, 2026), so the cutoff is the day before, Sept. 30, 2018; the months are alleged, not found

OpenAI (LibGen, as "Books1"/"Books2"): Class plaintiffs assert LibGen copies were renamed Books1 and Books2 (Authors Guild v. OpenAI, Dkt. 782); Books1/Books2 named in the GPT-3 paper (May 28, 2020)

OpenAI (Books3 (via The Pile)): In re OpenAI Copyright Litigation (S.D.N.Y. 1:25-md-03143), class plaintiffs' Rule 56.1 statement ¶¶404, 411–414 (Dkt. 1987, Sept. 17, 2026): an employee downloaded The Pile, 825 GB including Books3, into OpenAI storage on Feb. 1, 2021

Anthropic (Books3): Bartz v. Anthropic, order of June 23, 2025 ("early 2021"). Cutoff: Anthropic's interrogatory answer No. 18 (Bartz Dkt. 554-6 at 4, served Apr. 22, 2025, filed Jan. 21, 2026; signed by counsel) says Ben Mann downloaded Books3 "on or around February 25, 2021", so the cutoff is the day before, Feb. 24, 2021; the day is the company's statement, not a finding

Anthropic (LibGen): Bartz v. Anthropic, order of June 23, 2025 (June 2021). Cutoff: Anthropic's interrogatory answer No. 18 (Bartz Dkt. 554-6 at 4, served Apr. 22, 2025, filed Jan. 21, 2026; signed by counsel) says the LibGen dataset was torrented "between June 8, 2021 and June 19, 2021", so the cutoff is the day before copying began, June 7, 2021; the days are the company's statement, not a finding

Anthropic (PiLiMi): Bartz v. Anthropic, order of June 23, 2025 (July 2022). Cutoff: Anthropic's interrogatory answer No. 18 (Bartz Dkt. 554-6 at 4, served Apr. 22, 2025, filed Jan. 21, 2026; signed by counsel) says the PiLiMi dataset was torrented by two employees "between July 8, 2022 and August 10, 2022", so the cutoff is the day before copying began, July 7, 2022; the days are the company's statement, not a finding. Aug. 10, 2022 is also the date the parties agreed to for the settlement. The same answer says Anthropic treats "books" as works with a 10- or 13-digit ISBN and does not know all the contents of Internet-sourced datasets such as components of The Pile and Common Crawl, so books in those datasets are outside its three-dataset answer

Meta (LibGen): Kadrey v. Meta, order of June 25, 2025 (Dkt. 598)

Meta (Books3): Kadrey v. Meta, order of June 25, 2025 (Llama training data included Books3); Touvron et al., LLaMA (Feb. 27, 2023)

Meta (Anna's Archive (LibGen, Z-Library and others)): Kadrey v. Meta, order of June 25, 2025 (Dkt. 598 at 11–13): in early 2024 Meta downloaded Anna's Archive, a compilation including LibGen and Z-Library; undisputed that Meta torrented LibGen and Anna's Archive. Meta's Answer in Elsevier v. Meta (Dkt. 78 ¶97, July 13, 2026) admits obtaining Anna's Archive data in 2024

Mark Zuckerberg (individual; dismissed from Sullivan without prejudice) (LibGen (Meta's torrenting)): Elsevier v. Meta and Zuckerberg (S.D.N.Y. 1:26-cv-03689; transferred to N.D. Cal. Sept. 25, 2026), complaint ¶¶88–89 and contributory-infringement count against Zuckerberg; also named in Hobbs v. Meta (S.D.N.Y. 1:26-cv-04314) and Sullivan v. Meta (N.D. Cal. 3:26-cv-06793), from which he was dismissed without prejudice on Sept. 3, 2026 (Dkts. 60, 62). Cutoff: Meta first used LibGen in October 2022 (Kadrey v. Meta, order of June 25, 2025) and its answers date its LibGen download to in or about October 2022 (Sullivan v. Meta, Dkt. 85 ¶49), so a 2022 download cannot predate October; the cutoff is the day before, Sept. 30, 2022

Guillaume Lample (individual; claims dismissed without prejudice) (LibGen (Meta's first copy, torrented)): Hobbs v. Meta, Zuckerberg, Lample and Pineau (S.D.N.Y. 1:26-cv-04314), complaint ¶¶33, 66 (May 22, 2026): while at Meta, Lample torrented a copy of LibGen in 2022, including LibGen non-fiction; he is now a co-founder of Mistral AI. The plaintiffs dismissed their claims against Lample without prejudice (notice Sept. 9, approved Sept. 11, 2026), so they could be brought again; the amended complaint of Sept. 16, 2026 names Meta, Zuckerberg and unnamed defendants. Cutoff: Meta first used LibGen in October 2022 (Kadrey v. Meta, order of June 25, 2025) and its answers date its LibGen download to in or about October 2022 (Sullivan v. Meta, Dkt. 85 ¶49), so a 2022 download cannot predate October; the cutoff is the day before, Sept. 30, 2022

Joelle Pineau (individual; claims dismissed without prejudice) (LibGen (Meta's torrenting)): Hobbs v. Meta, Zuckerberg, Lample and Pineau (S.D.N.Y. 1:26-cv-04314), complaint ¶32 (May 22, 2026): named as a defendant as the Meta VP who led FAIR and oversaw Llama; no separate download date is alleged, so the cutoff follows Meta's 2022 LibGen download. The plaintiffs dismissed their claims against Pineau without prejudice (notice Sept. 9, approved Sept. 11, 2026), so they could be brought again; the amended complaint of Sept. 16, 2026 names Meta, Zuckerberg and unnamed defendants. Cutoff: Meta first used LibGen in October 2022 (Kadrey v. Meta, order of June 25, 2025) and its answers date its LibGen download to in or about October 2022 (Sullivan v. Apple (Books3 (via The Pile / RedPajama)): Hendrix v. Apple (N.D. Cal., Sept. 2025); Martinez-Conde v. Apple (N.D. Cal., Oct. 9, 2025), complaints

Together AI (Books3 (part, in the RedPajama dataset)): James v. Together Computer, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 3:25-cv-09578), Together AI's answer to the first amended complaint (Dkt. 54, June 3, 2026) ¶¶22–23, 29, 31–33: it is one of the collaborators that created RedPajama; as released in April 2023 the dataset's books section contained a subset of Books3; its Apr. 17, 2023 blog post linked the download; Books3 was removed Apr. 12, 2024. The answer does not admit training Together AI's own models on the books section.
Cerebras (Books3 (via The Pile; SlimPajama)): James v. Cerebras Systems Inc. (N.D. Cal. 4:25-cv-09361), complaint ¶¶26–28, 30 (Oct. 30, 2025): Cerebras-GPT pre-trained on The Pile, including Books3. Cerebras's answer to the amended complaint (Dkt. 76, July 9, 2026) ¶¶28, 33, 39, 62 admits using portions of The Pile for Cerebras-GPT and building its SlimPajama dataset from portions of RedPajama; it does not admit Books3.
Adobe (Books3 (via SlimPajama / RedPajama)): Lyon v. Adobe Inc. (N.D. Cal. 3:25-cv-10732), complaint (Dec. 2025): the SlimLM models were pre-trained on SlimPajama, built from RedPajama, whose books part is Books3. Adobe's answer to the consolidated complaint (Dkt. 36, May 22, 2026) ¶¶5, 27, 28 admits SlimPajama was used to pre-train its SlimLM research models and does not mention Books3; SlimLM paper, arXiv 2411.09944 (Nov. 15, 2024).
Microsoft (pirated books (about 200,000; dataset per complaint)): Bird v. Microsoft (S.D.N.Y., June 2025), complaint (Megatron) xAI (Grok) (LibGen, Z-Library, OceanofPDF): Carreyrou et al. v. Anthropic et al. (N.D. Cal. 5:25-cv-10897), complaint ¶2 (Dec. 22, 2025); the amended complaint (Dkt. 119, Mar. 10, 2026) ¶39 adds a 'reasonable basis to believe' xAI downloaded Anna's Archive
Google (Gemini) (LibGen, Z-Library, OceanofPDF): Carreyrou et al. v. Anthropic et al. (N.D. Cal. 5:25-cv-10897), complaint ¶¶2, 8, 74 (Dec. 22, 2025): Gemini and Imagen alleged to rely on Z-Library and OceanofPDF data
Perplexity (LibGen, Z-Library, OceanofPDF): Carreyrou et al. v. Anthropic et al. (N.D. Cal. 5:25-cv-10897), complaint ¶2 (Dec. 22, 2025); amended complaint ¶40 (Dkt. 119, Mar. 10, 2026) adds a 'reasonable basis to believe' Perplexity downloaded Anna's Archive
DeepSeek (Anna's Archive (e-books)): Lu et al., DeepSeek-VL (arXiv 2403.05525, v1 Mar. 8, 2024), §2.1: 860K English and 180K Chinese e-books from Anna's Archive, cleaned for document OCR data
NVIDIA (Anna's Archive (high-speed access)): Nazemian v. NVIDIA (N.D. Cal. 4:24-cv-01454), first consolidated amended complaint ¶¶53–57 (ECF 235, Jan. 16, 2026): NVIDIA contacted Anna's Archive about high-speed access in August 2023 and management approved within a week. NVIDIA withdrew its motion to dismiss as to Anna's Archive (ECF 271, Mar. 6, 2026); its Answer admits downloading data for AI research from annas-archive.org/datasets and libgen.rs, without dates, and denies improperly copying the plaintiffs' works (ECF 321 ¶¶58, 77, June 9, 2026)
NVIDIA (LibGen, Z-Library (and Sci-Hub)): Nazemian v. NVIDIA (N.D. Cal. 4:24-cv-01454), first consolidated amended complaint ¶58 (ECF 235, Jan. 16, 2026), on information and belief; Carreyrou amended complaint ¶41 (Dkt. 119, Mar. 10, 2026) alleges NVIDIA downloaded Anna's Archive
NVIDIA (Internet Archive lending books (in Anna's Archive's offer)): Nazemian v. NVIDIA, first consolidated amended complaint ¶57 (ECF 235, Jan. 16, 2026): Anna's Archive's offer, about 500 TB, included millions of Internet Archive lending books
Meta (Internet Archive books (46 TB, as alleged)): Hobbs v. Meta (S.D.N.Y. 1:26-cv-04314), complaint ¶¶73–74 (May 22, 2026): by mid-April 2024 Meta held 46 TB from the Internet Archive (5.8 million files), 25.7 TB from Z-Library and 10 TB from LibGen
Apple (Anna's Archive): Carreyrou et al. v. Anthropic et al. (N.D. Cal. 5:25-cv-10897), amended complaint ¶38 (Dkt. 119, Mar. 10, 2026): a 'reasonable basis to believe' Apple downloaded Anna's Archive

Method and limits

Search rule. The name was split into parts; a record matched when every part was found at the start of a word within one author name of the record (so “Ann” matches Ann and Anna but not Joanne, and initials are optional). In the default “close together” mode the parts must fall within a short window of the same name, which excludes lists of other people’s names in the same field. Spelling variants of a name are separate searches and are not covered by this report.

LibGen. A line means that the Library Genesis non-fiction or fiction database, as exported in one or more of the dated dumps listed under Data provenance (preserved by the Internet Archive), contained a catalog entry with that title, author, year, publisher, language, ISBN and edition; the line names the snapshots in which it appears and, where the catalog recorded it, the date the entry was added. PiLiMi. A line means the Pirate Library Mirror index of Z-Library (metadata-only copy) lists the record, and which 2022 release carried it; this index carries no ISBNs, so PiLiMi lines match registrations by title and name only. Each catalog entry describes one file; entries for the same edition are combined into one line, and “catalog entries” gives how many. A line is a statement about the catalog on that date. It does not show that any person or company downloaded the file. LibGen entries added after the last snapshot in this dataset (June 3, 2025) are not included.

Z-Library after PiLiMi. Lines marked “Z-Library” come from two later catalogs: Anna’s Archive’s index of Z-Library records added from August 25, 2022 to August 6, 2023 (2,630,955 records, each with its Z-Library ID, date added and MD5 as Z-Library reported them; metadata-only copy on Hugging Face), and the Z-Library extract in the MajinBook catalogue (Mazières and Poibeau, Zenodo, CC-BY 4.0), which the authors describe as Z-Library’s metadata as of January 2025, sourced through Anna’s Archive, and which keeps EPUB-type records only (EPUB, MOBI, AZW and similar). A record known only from the January 2025 extract has no date added; its ID shows it was added after August 2023. Records already in PiLiMi are not repeated; a PiLiMi line notes when the January 2025 catalog still listed the record. These lines match registrations by ISBN where the record carries one, otherwise by title and name. No Z-Library file was obtained or examined.

Internet Archive. Lines marked “Internet Archive lending” mean the Internet Archive’s lending library (its “inlibrary” collection of scanned print books, which signed-in users can borrow) lists the book, with the date the Archive added the item, as returned by the Archive’s public search API on the date shown under Data provenance. The Internet Archive is a nonprofit library. In Hachette Book Group v. Internet Archive, 115 F.4th 163 (2d Cir. 2024), the court held that the Archive’s scanning and lending of the 127 works at issue was not fair use; that holding concerned those works only. That some AI developers obtained Internet Archive books is an allegation in pending cases (see the timing section), not a court finding.

Books3. Lines come from a list of 196,608 Books3 file names published by Peter Schoppert in the psmedia/Books3Info repository (filenames.txt). Books3, the book collection included in “The Pile,” is reported to contain 196,640 books as released; the published list is 32 names shorter. A line shows that a file whose name carries the searched name is in that list; it does not by itself show that any company copied Books3 or that any model was trained on the book. Author and title were read out of the file name (“Title - Author.epub.txt”); where a file name could not be split with confidence both halves are given as the author. About 19,000 file names carry no recognizable author and cannot be found by name. The report does not contain, and PayAuthors does not hold, the Books3 texts.

Books3 ISBN lists. Peter Schoppert extracted 129,635 ISBN-13s from the text of the Books3 files (Books2_ISBNs.txt), and some Books3 lookups identify books by those ISBNs. The list does not say which file each ISBN came from, and a book’s text prints other books’ ISBNs (an “also by” page, a bibliography, an excerpt from the next book in a series), so an ISBN on the list can belong to a book that was never in Books3. We check each one against the Books3 file list: a book counts as in Books3 only when a Books3 file carries its title under the name searched or a co-author’s name. When no Books3 file carries the title, the report says the book is not in Books3 by its file list and leaves it out of every count; when a file with the title is listed under another name, the report shows that file to check and does not count it.

U.S. Copyright Office. Registration matches were made against the Office’s public tabular data for non-dramatic literary works (TX), registrations dated from 1978 (with a few earlier records) through December 30, 2025, as published in January 2026, by the v6.3 rule (October 2, 2026): (1) ISBN equality where both sides carry one, kept only when the registration also shares a surname, pen name or publisher name, or most of the title; (2) exact normalized full title plus an author or claimant surname; (3) exact normalized main title (before a colon, slash or dash) plus surname, with safeguards against series names and disagreeing subtitles; (4) the same set of title words with stop words (the, of, on, and…) ignored, plus surname, only when nothing else matched — which catches Office records whose title was keyed slightly differently, such as “The edge of the sword” for The Edge on the Sword; (5) exact full title plus the catalog’s publisher named on a company registration. Matches to a study guide or adaptation, or with disagreeing volume, issue or edition numbers, are set aside, and a match to a translation is never counted: a catalog copy the library tags in another language counts as the registered book only when it carries the English edition’s title and an English-language ISBN (or none), which marks a wrong language tag; any other copy in another language is listed as a translation with the registration of the original, never counted as the book’s presence in a dataset, because a translation is not the registered text. Titles are compared after routine normalization; up to eight registrations of the work are listed. Each registration match is marked Record matched (the Office record agrees on title, author or claimant, volume and edition, and dates); Record matched: other edition (the registration covers the same text in another edition or format); Not yet checked (shown, not counted, until a check confirms it); Unconfirmed (a review or spot check could not settle it; not counted); or Registration for a later edition (it covers only a later edition’s new material; not counted). A line marked “Check this match” has an Office record that names a person other than the one searched, often a legal name behind a pen name or a catalog error; see payauthors.com/methodology#verification; a record match is not a finding of ownership, copying or eligibility. Measured against works lists filed in court, the rule links about 94% of the Bartz opt-out works found in these catalogs (1,540 of 1,639) and 93% of publishers’ listed textbooks found in them (from a list of 7,001) to the exact registration; in a hand check by a person (rescored October 23, 2026, analysis revision 33), all 310 matches that reports count were the same work (95% range 98.8% to 100%), and a second person checking separately judged none a different work; see payauthors.com/methodology#validation. A registration covers the work in any printing or format, so a different edition of the same text is still the registered work; an edition matters only where its text differs. Tiers 2 to 5 are heuristic: a match means a registration exists for that title and name, not that the catalog copy is that exact edition. Every match is a candidate, not a determination of authorship or ownership. PayAuthors is not affiliated with, or endorsed by, the U.S. Copyright Office. Registrations made after December 30, 2025 (the last date in the January 2026 file) do not appear, including any obtained before filing suit; check the Office's Public Records System for current status. Confirm any line you intend to rely on against the linked Copyright Office record. Many registrations carry no ISBN, pre-1978 and most foreign works are absent, and titles registered under a different form of the name will not match; a missing registration mark is therefore not evidence of non-registration. Only TX (text) registrations are matched: sound-recording (SR) registrations such as audiobooks and registrations in other classes are outside this report, although the linked Copyright Office catalog shows them alongside the TX record. The Registration Details report lists, for each matched registration, the recorded documents (assignments, licenses, security interests and other V-number documents), renewals and notices of termination (17 U.S.C. §§ 203 and 304) that the Office's January 2026 bulk files tie to it. A document or notice is listed when it cites the registration number, or, for renewals and termination notices, when it carries the same title and a party or claimant whose name matches an author or claimant on the registration. Most renewal records in the bulk files carry no title, so other renewals may exist; a renewal concerns a work first registered before 1978, often an earlier edition of the registered book. A termination notice records an intent to end an earlier grant; it does not show that the termination took effect.

Registration-date screen (17 U.S.C. § 412). Where a line carries a confirmed registration match, the report compares the registration date with the download date for each dated event (court records, companies' own papers or filings, and, listed separately, allegations). The download date is the later of the documented start of the download period and the library's own record of when that copy was added (catalog metadata as the library reported it, not independent proof of acquisition); for Books3 it is no earlier than the collection's October 2020 release. For an event known only by an outer bound, such as a paper, model release or complaint date, only the record date is available, and the line names it. A LibGen copy counts as in the dataset at a download only when a dated LibGen catalog snapshot taken on or before that download lists it. A registration before the download date passes, as does one made within three months of a publication that came first; where the dates overlap or no download date is known, the result is shown as "dates overlap or download date unknown" and not counted. The screen does not assess the exceptions in § 412. It is a date screen: it does not show that the registration covers the listed edition, that a company took this copy, or that statutory damages or fees are available.

Books and Work IDs. A book (a work) is every copy, format and edition of one book in the report; each gets one Work ID, shared by this PDF, the web page, the CSV (work_id) and the JSON. Title lines join one book when they share an ISBN or a registration, or when their titles match once a series number, a generic subtitle ("A Novel") or the author's name is set aside. Two lines whose titles name different books of a series ("Skin Walkers: Mason" and "Skin Walkers: Taken"; "The Bounty Hunter Wars I: The Mandalorian Armor" and "The Bounty Hunter Wars II: Slave Ship") stay separate, even when our matching found the same registration for both; that registration is listed on each and counts only where the Copyright Office record confirms it. A registration the record confirms for two titles makes them one work, so a collection or box set counts once. Joins made by title alone are marked "confirm". Counts and the date screen are per book, using the earliest copy. A book listed only in another language with no confirmed registration is named as a likely translation and is not counted as another book.

Scope. Metadata only: titles, author fields, years, languages, publishers, ISBNs, file names, snapshot dates and registration data. No book contents are stored or reproduced. This sample is rebuilt from the current data each time it is opened, so its counts can change when the datasets are refreshed.

Appendix: U.S. Copyright Office records

The pages that follow give the Copyright Office's record for each matched registration, in two parts, each in the order listed below. First come record pages that PayAuthors transcribed from the Office's published data (its registration data set at data.copyright.gov and, where noted, the full record from its Public Records System), for each registration whose record the Office does not offer as a PDF (it does so for registrations from about mid-2009 on) or whose PDF is not included here. These pages are not Office documents. Then come the Office's own PDF records, as served by its Public Records System (publicrecords.copyright.gov), retrieved November 11, 2026 and reproduced unchanged except for redactions: in a report not prepared at the direction of counsel, PayAuthors blacks out street addresses, email addresses and telephone numbers (and, for a search by pen name, the legal name the record ties to it). Each redacted page says so at its foot; the unredacted record is on the Office's site. The same details are shown as redacted in the rest of this report. Each registration number links to the Office's record. A registration here is a candidate match to the work, to confirm against the record.
